

Marri

Corymbia calophylla

When to look:

Flowering occurs from December to May

Similar species:

Marri is superficially similar to Corymbia ficifolia: however, it has urn-shaped fruit rather than barrel shaped, its seeds are larger and do not have wings, and its oil glands in the leaves are prominent. C. ficifolia always has scarlet flowers, while marri flowers are almost always white

Urn shaped fruit is 0.7-1.4 cm in length

White to pink flowers

Grows 40-60 m high

Leaves are lance to oval
shaped with distinct veins

Images courtesy of Rich Weatherill